FIMM Fund Name Change Effective May 28, 2016

To comply with requirements of amended Rule 2a-7, Fidelity approved changes to Fidelity's prime and municipal money market fund designations in October 2015. As part of these changes the branding name of "Fidelity Institutional Money Market Funds" will be changed to "Fidelity Investments Money Market Funds" effective May 28, 2016. This change is being made to avoid potential confusion from having the word "institutional" within the product name.

All instances where the name is listed as Fidelity Institutional Money Market Funds should be changed to Fidelity Investments Money Market Funds. In many cases, no change is required because the funds are often referenced with the FIMM acronym. The CUSIPs, fund numbers and trading symbols will not change.
