

Announcement

Goldman Sachs Asset Management (“GSAM”) announced updates to its money market fund product lineup to prepare clients for the Securities and Exchange Commission’s (“SEC’s”) Rule 2a-7 amendments, which become effective in October 2016.

Please see below for a summary of these changes and Fund details. For more information, refer to the press release announced on December 18, 2015.

Summary of Fund Updates

The following updates have been filed with the SEC on Dec. 18th for the Financial Square (“FSQ”) Funds.

1. FSQ Money Market Fund and FSQ Prime Obligations Fund Designation Changes

The Goldman Sachs Financial Square Money Market Fund and the Goldman Sachs Financial Square Prime Obligations Fund plan to operate as “institutional money market funds,” as defined by amended Rule 2a-7 by the regulatory deadline of October 14, 2016. The Funds will not change their investment policies and will comply with floating NAV and liquidity fees and redemption gates requirements upon their transition.

2. FSQ Prime Obligations Fund Repositioning

As of December 29, 2015, the Goldman Sachs Financial Square Prime Obligations Fund will expand its investment guidelines to invest in U.S. dollar-denominated obligations of foreign issuers, though the Fund does not intend to purchase U.S. dollar-denominated Euro certificates of deposit.

3. FSQ Tax-Free Money Market Fund Designation Change

The Goldman Sachs Financial Square Tax-Free Money Market Fund plans to operate as a “retail money market fund,” as defined by amended Rule 2a-7 by the regulatory deadline of October 14, 2016. Effective March 31, 2016, the Fund will be renamed the “Goldman Sachs Investor Tax-Exempt Money Market Fund.” The Fund will not change its investment policies and will only be available to retail investors (as set forth by the SEC’s new rules) on or before October 14, 2016.

4. FSQ Tax-Exempt Money Market Fund

GSAM has filed an initial registration statement for the Goldman Sachs Financial Square Tax-Exempt Money Market Fund, which plans to operate as an “institutional money market fund,” as defined by amended Rule 2a-7 by the regulatory deadline of October 14, 2016. The Fund is projected to be launched on or around March 31, 2016. The Fund will comply with floating NAV and liquidity fees and redemption gates requirements by the regulatory deadline of October 14, 2016.

5. FSQ Tax-Exempt New York and FSQ Tax-Exempt California Funds Liquidation

The Goldman Sachs Financial Square Tax-Exempt New York Fund and the Goldman Sachs Financial Square Tax-Exempt California Fund will be liquidated on or before August 31, 2016. The liquidations are based on changing investor needs and are in response to the long-term investment environment. Details regarding the trading timeline will be shared separately closer to the liquidation date.
